- After 10 years of performing around the world in the revival of The Righteous Brothers alongside the legendary Bill Medley, Bucky Heard is now making his mark as a solo artist.
- Heard's music and his artistry are on full display in his upcoming album 'Breathless' produced by legendary Nashville producer Bob Bullock, whose production and engineering credits include Shania Twain, Reba, George Strait, Keith Urban, and REO Speedwagon, among many other artists.
- He has recently released three critically acclaimed singles, "My Best Days," "It Is What It Is (Till It Ain't)," and his cover of the Roy Orbison classic, "Crying."
- Heard has garnered critical praise in such publications as The Washington Post, Taste of Country, USA Today, and The Boot.
- His music and music videos have been featured by WSM Radio, The Heartland Network, The Family Channel, and others.
- He has shared the concert stage with superstars from multiple genres, including Glen Campbell, Michael McDonald, BB King, Collin Raye, The Beach Boys (featuring John Stamos), Mark McGrath ("Sugar Ray"), The Temptations, Jonathan Cain (Journey), and many more.
- Upcoming shows in New York, Nevada, Florida, and Tennessee.
